

Billion-dollar fines can't stop Google and Facebook. That's peanuts for them | The Guardian

By Siva Vaidhyanathan

July 29, 2019

During the same 48 hours this week in which Facebook agreed to pay the largest corporate fine in the history of the US Federal Trade Commission for massive and repetitive violations of a similar agreement from 2012, and the US justice department announced a sweeping antitrust investigation of Facebook, Google, and Amazon, the company also announced it's doing better than ever.

[...]

Source: Billion-dollar fines can't stop Google and Facebook. That's peanuts for them | US news | The Guardian