

China has censored a top health information platform | MIT Technology Review

By Zeyi Yang

August 15, 2022

China has censored DXY, the country's leading health information platform. On August 9, DXY fell silent across social media, where it boasts over 80 million followers. Five of its Weibo accounts were suddenly suspended with a vague explanation that they had violated "relevant laws and regulations", while its accounts on WeChat and Douyin (the domestic version of TikTok) stopped publishing.

[...]

Source: China has censored a top health information platform | MIT Technology Review