

COVID vaccine disinformation behind low inoculation rates | Los Angeles Times

By Rong-Gong Lin II and Luke Money

October 5, 2021

When it comes to misinformation about the COVID-19 vaccines, health advocates have heard it all.

During a recent round of surveying farmworkers, there were a number of concerns ranging from misguided and inaccurate to specific and head-scratching, such as that the shots will somehow alter a recipient's sexuality.

"Every single week, it's a new myth," Hernan Hernandez, executive director of the Central Valley-based California Farmworker Foundation, said last week.

[...]

Source: COVID vaccine disinformation behind low inoculation rates | Los Angeles Times