

‘Don’t fuel the fire’: disinformation experts on how Biden should deal with Trump’s election lies | The Guardian

By Lois Beckett

November 13, 2020

In the days since Joe Biden won the US presidential election, Donald Trump has rejected the results, spread lies about voter fraud, replaced key military leaders with loyalists, and encouraged Republicans at every level of the party to contest the vote counts showing that he lost.

Americans are now debating how Biden should respond.

Biden has called Trump’s refusal to concede an “embarrassment” and told voters that “the fact that they’re not willing to acknowledge that we won at this point is not of much consequence”.

[...]

Source: ‘Don’t fuel the fire’: disinformation experts on how Biden should deal with Trump’s election lies | US news | The Guardian