

Examining the Global Spread of COVID-19 Misinformation | Europe PMC

By Sophie Nightingale and Hany Farid

February 4, 2021

Europe PMC requires Javascript to function effectively.

Either your web browser doesn't support Javascript or it is currently turned off. In the latter case, please turn on Javascript support in your web browser and reload this page.

The global COVID-19 pandemic has led to the online proliferation of health-, political-, and conspiratorial-based misinformation. Understanding the reach and belief in this misinformation is vital to managing this crisis, as well as future crises. The results from our global survey finds a troubling reach of and belief in COVID-related misinformation, as well as a correlation with those that primarily consume news from social media, and, in the United States, a strong correlation with political leaning.

[...]

Source: Examining the Global Spread of COVID-19 Misinformation - Abstract - Europe PMC