Facebook Chief Mark Zuckerberg Wants More Internet Regulation | WSJ

By Jeff Horwitz

April 9, 2019

Facebook Inc. Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg called for global regulators to take a "more active role" in governing the internet, among his strongest remarks yet on regulation that come after more than a year of intense scrutiny over missteps at the social network.

In an op-ed published Saturday on the websites of the Washington Post and Ireland's Independent, Mr. Zuckerberg said such intervention is vital to protect both the welfare of users and the fundamental values of an open internet.
