

Internet ‘is not working for women and girls’, says Berners-Lee | The Guardian

By Ian Sample

March 16, 2020

Women and girls face a “growing crisis” of online harms, with sexual harassment, threatening messages and discrimination making the web an unsafe place to be, Sir Tim Berners-Lee has warned.

The inventor of the world wide web said the “dangerous trend” in online abuse was forcing women out of jobs, causing girls to skip school, damaging relationships and silencing female opinions, prompting him to conclude that “the web is not working for women and girls”.

“The world has made important progress on gender equality thanks to the unceasing drive of committed champions everywhere,” Berners-Lee wrote in an open letter to mark the web’s 31st birthday on Thursday. “But I am seriously concerned that online harms facing women and girls - especially those of colour, from LGBTQ+ communities and other marginalised groups - threaten that progress.”

[...]

Source: Internet ‘is not working for women and girls’, says Berners-Lee | Technology | The Guardian