

Job Opportunity: Assistant Professor of Communication | Cornell University

By Cornell University

May 20, 2021

The Department of Communication at Cornell University invites applications for a 9-month, full time tenure-track faculty position in communication at the Assistant Professor level. The successful applicant will conduct research and teach courses in areas that complement the department's leadership in the social scientific study of communication. We welcome applicants whose research supports and extends our existing strengths, which include culture and identity; groups, organizations, and networks; media studies; policy and public engagement; science, health, risk, environment; social inequality; and/or technology and social media. The department is taking active steps to build diversity, equity, and inclusion into all facets of our work, and the colleague we hire will help us advance these efforts in our research, teaching, and engagement. Our department values multiple methods of qualitative and quantitative inquiry and embraces interdisciplinary collaboration. The position involves 50% research and 50% teaching responsibilities. Communication faculty teach five undergraduate and/or graduate courses over two academic years and advise students in the Department's B.S. and Ph.D. programs.

[...]

Source: Job Opportunity: Assistant Professor of Communication | Cornell University