

On social media, vaccine misinformation mixes with extreme faith | Anchorage Daily News

By Elizabeth Dwoskin

February 19, 2021

In an insular world on the social media app TikTok, young Christians act out biblically inspired scenes in which they are forced to take a vaccine for the coronavirus, only to end up splattered in fake blood and on the brink of death. The melodramatic videos are an attempt to represent how the introduction of coronavirus vaccines could herald the biblical End Time. Along with hundreds of thousands of other vaccine-questioning posts by social media users all over the world, they're demonstrating the ways in which health misinformation is targeting Christians, some reaching sizable audiences.

[...]

Source: On social media, vaccine misinformation mixes with extreme faith | Anchorage Daily News