> This week, a well known U.K. podcast asked me to be a guest on their show. The interviewer wanted to talk about information warfare and Ukraine. "Don't you think Ukrainians are being so clever about their information war?" he asked me. I wasn't sure what he meant, because I had assumed they were just trying to survive.
> "But don't you think they are using really interesting tactics on social media?" he pressed me. All the stories, he said, were so human and touching, a new level in the whole disinformation struggle.
