

Ron Wyden, Section 230, and the fight to hold Big Tech accountable | Vox

By Sara Morrison

August 7, 2020

Sen. Ron Wyden is ready to send the CEO of Facebook to prison, and he has the bill to do it.

“When Mark Zuckerberg tells a whopper to the federal government about his privacy policy, not only would he face a fine, but he can face prison time!” Wyden said. In October 2019, he introduced the Mind Your Own Business Act, which he hopes will create a set of privacy and security standards that Big Tech companies and data brokers must follow and hold people like Zuckerberg accountable if they don’t — especially if they lie to the government about it. “Nobody else has said, ‘Hey, if you rip people off that way, you’re gonna face the prospect of time in prison.’”

[...]

Source: Ron Wyden, Section 230, and the fight to hold Big Tech accountable - Vox