

Tech Workers are Fleeing the United States to Work in Canada | Business Insider

By Zoë Bernard

March 30, 2018

A new study by Canadian tech innovator hub MaRS reported that tech companies in Toronto saw a significant escalation of US applicants in 2017.

The study, which was originally reported by Axios, surveyed 55 tech companies in Toronto and found that more than half had seen an increase in international applicants. Of the international applicants who applied, 82% were from the US.

Source: Tech workers are fleeing the United States to work in Canada - Business Insider