

Top 10 Misinformation Storylines on Election Week | The New York Times

By Davey Alba

November 11, 2020

Election week was a misinformation event of Super Bowl-size proportions.

Most false and misleading narratives about the election focused on baseless allegations of voter fraud or Democrats stealing the election. Those false accusations often spiked when President Trump and his allies — including his family members — shared those claims on social media.

But there were also plenty of misleading storylines to go around.

[...]

Source: Top 10 Misinformation Storylines on Election Week - The New York Times