

Trump's False Posts Were Treated with Kid Gloves by Facebook | The Markup

By Jon Keegan, Colin Lecher, and Corin Faife

February 17, 2021

As users drifted through Facebook in the aftermath of the presidential election, they may have run across a satirical article about the Nashville bombing in December. Playing off conspiracies about COVID-19 death diagnoses, a viral photo jokingly suggested the bomber had “died from COVID-19 shortly after blowing himself up.”

In the beginning of January, a New York woman was shown the photo—shared by a friend—in her news feed. Facebook appended a note over the top: The information was false.

[...]

Source: Trump's False Posts Were Treated with Kid Gloves by Facebook - The Markup