

Twitter failing to curb misinformation ‘superspreaders’, report warns | Financial Times

By Hannah Murphy

May 7, 2020

Twitter is failing to rein in “superspreaders” of coronavirus misinformation on its platform, according to research detailing dozens of posts shared by high-profile accounts apparently flouting the social media group’s rules.

Tech companies including Twitter, Facebook and YouTube have all introduced new policies to clamp down on the so-called infodemic of false coronavirus information that has swept the internet in recent weeks amid panic and national lockdowns.

[...]

Source: Twitter failing to curb misinformation ‘superspreaders’, report warns | Financial Times