

Twitter put warning labels on hundreds of thousands of tweets. Our research examined which worked best. | The Washington Post

By Megan A. Brown, Zeve Sanderson, Jonathan Nagler, Richard Bonneau and Joshua Tucker
December 11, 2020

Recently, Twitter CEO Jack Dorsey and Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee on misinformation and the 2020 election. Republicans and Democrats alike grilled the pair for more than four hours, especially on how they moderate what can be shared on their platforms and how they enforce policy violations.

Senators especially asked Dorsey about Twitter's decision to label President Trump's tweets as false or misleading. Republicans accused Twitter of bias against conservatives, while Democrats blamed it for allowing misinformation's spread online.

[...]

Source: Twitter put warning labels on hundreds of thousands of tweets. Our research examined which worked best. | The Washington Post